This Week—

By M. I. N. I.

You can take your choice and pay your money on rumors floating about Washington since President-elect Roosevelt has been conferring with democratic Congressmen. Some folks say there will be no cut by the democrats in Army and Navy strength, others insist they will reduce the commissioned force of the Army and Navy by 2,000 officers each. My guess is that no final decision has been reached, and that the policy will not be determined until the Democratic Congressional Steering Committee meets. In the meantime, conferences with Mr. Roosevelt will occur at Warm Springs, Georgia.

There are two reasons why the democrats should not lessen the strength of our National Defense. First, the existence of a determined purpose on the part of the people to maintain our forces, insufficient as they are, and, second, the growth of resentment in consequence of our stand upon the intergovernmental debt question, as well as the feeling in Japan against our Manchurian policy. Did you note how the President, in rejecting a second debt moratorium, made a plea for understanding and for peace, and stated that disarmament would be a part of the picture of the Economic Conference which will be held next year? Does this constitute an admission that the present Geneva Disarmament Conference is a failure?

Secretaries Hail Army-Navy Game

Secretary of War Hurley

To ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL on the occasion of Army-Navy Football Game, Dec. 3, 1932:

To me, there is no spectacle more pleasing to the eye nor more satisfying to the soul, than an Army-Navy game and its attendant festivities. Here we behold young American manhood at its best. No loyal American can gaze upon the corps of cadets and midshipmen, on parade or in the stands, and upon their representatives on the gridiron, without a feeling of contentment that the future safety of the nation rests in strong and capable hands.

On December 3, I expect to be in the stands rooting naturally for a West Point victory but always eager and ready to applaud the efforts of our gallant rivals.

"May the best team win!"

(Signed) PATRICK J. HURLEY,
Secretary of War.

Secretary of Navy Adams

To ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL on the occasion of the Army-Navy Football Game:

I look forward to seeing a clean hard-fought game characterized by the highest sportsmanship.

(Signed) C. F. ADAMS,
Secretary of Navy.

Marine Corps Reduction

A reduction of 1,700 men in the enlisted strength of the Marine Corps is to be provided in the Navy budget for next year. The slash, the third within as many years, will bring the total strength of the Corps down to 13,600.

Despite the fact that the Marines are being taken out of Nicaragua, and will be available for other duty, the reduction may result in the closing of one of

Approve New Army Ration

President Hoover has approved and yesterday sent to the State Department for promulgation an executive order setting a new garrison ration for the Army.

This improved ration will become effective April 1, 1933.

The executive order substitutes the following for the garrison ration now being used:

Meats—Bacon, 2 ounces; beef, fresh, 10 ounces; chicken, fresh, two ounces; pork, fresh, four ounces.

Eggs—Fresh, one each.

Dry vegetables and cereal—Beans, 0.5 ounce; rice, 0.6 ounce; rolled oats, 1.5 ounces.

Fresh vegetables—Beans, stringed, canned, three ounces; corn, canned, two ounces; onions, two ounces; peas, canned, two ounces; potatoes, ten ounces; tomatoes, canned, two ounces.

Fruit—Apples, canned, 1.5 ounces; jam or preserves, 0.5 ounce; peaches, canned, 1.2 ounces; pineapple, canned, 1.2 ounces; prunes, 0.3 ounce.

Beverages—Coffee, roasted, or roasted and ground, two ounces; cocoa, 0.3 ounce; tea, 0.05 ounce.

Milk—Evaporated, one ounce; fresh, eight ounces.

Lard, 0.64 ounce; lard substitute, 0.64 ounce.

Butter, two ounces.

Flour, wheat, twelve ounces.

Baking powder, 0.09 ounce.

Macaroni, 0.25 ounce.

Cheese, 0.25 ounce.

Sugar, five ounces.

Cinnamon, 0.014 ounce.

Flavoring extracts, 0.02 ounce.

Pepper, black, 0.04 ounce.

Discussion of International Problems by U. S. Press Centers on Disarmament

Discussion of disarmament prospects and problems has been prevalent in the editorial columns of American newspapers during the past few weeks. Impending debt payments, proposals as to arms limitation, and Germany's internal political unrest have turned the eyes of the world upon international matters. The views on the question of disarmament have been varied.

"Fourteen years have passed since the curtain was rung down on the war that was to end all wars," comments the San Francisco Chronicle. "The war that was to end all wars has not yet achieved its high purpose."

"Yet progress has been made. By the Kellogg pact all the great nations have renounced war as an instrument of national policy. Aggressive war has been outlawed morally, if it has not yet been banished physically. Though the world is still a long way from peace and Europe remains a military camp, armed to the teeth, yet the Kellogg treaty stands."

"And a showdown on disarmament must some day be made at Geneva. The crushing burden of taxation that lies heavy on all nations because of huge expenditures for arms must be lightened. This is the peace that humanity prays for. This is the hope of the world on this Armistice Day."

"Business takes Americans and everybody else all over the whole world," states the Memphis Commercial Appeal. "Identity of economic interests forges international links and therein may lie the hope of future peace. More economic and mercantile invasions of backward countries to lift them to higher levels of comfort and understanding are urged by economic writers and experts generally. Politics should not hold back business friendships between nations any longer."

"For all the thrill of military parades, the quickened pace at drum beats, the enthusiasm at sight of uniforms, the pride and security realized in adequate defense and skilled achievement, for all the worship of bravery in face of death, let nothing prevent outlawing war internationally. Not for all the Armistice Day parades, not for the thrilling joy of another real Armistice would any single soldier go through that nerve-wrecking hell of sorrow and suffering again."

"America will not listen to foreign debt reduction pleas until the foreign governments cease blocking disarmament," declares the New York World Telegram.

"The connection between the two issues is direct and definite. Debt payments are a small burden compared with the armament load. If the foreign governments continue to squander on military establishments, not all the arguments and figures in the world can convince the American taxpayer that he should take their additional debt burden upon himself. * * * For the first time the European governments seem to have grasped this essential fact. Therefore, in preparation for the debt negotiations which they have requested of our Government, they have suddenly injected new life into the expiring disarmament conference."

"For that reason, if for no other, the French arms reduction plan announced at Geneva is exceedingly hopeful."

"Premier Herriot's Sunday speech at Toulouse in which he held out the hand of friendship to Italy," the Nashville Tennessean states, "has been hailed by French newspapers of different political faiths as opening the way for negotiating a Franco-Italian understanding to end the ill will which has made relations between the two countries a matter of grave concern since the London naval conference of 1930."

"The optimism of the French press, therefore, is not entirely unfounded. It is possible that the Toulouse speech will lead directly to Franco-Italian adherence to the London treaty, in itself a great step in the interest of world peace, and harmony between the two countries would be an important factor in the effort to bring success out of the forthcoming session of the disarmament conference at Geneva."

"Ever since the close of the World War the American government has been doing what it could in the interest of world limitation of armament," states the Philadelphia Dispatch. "We signed the Washington treaty limiting the number of battleships at a great sacrifice to our own naval defense. Had we gone on building according to program, we would now have a battle fleet more powerful than any in the world. We gave up this potential superiority in the interest of peace and disarmament. * * *

"Ever since then the nations of Europe have been promising to get together and limit land armaments. But they have not done so, nor is there any good indication that they will do so, in spite of the fact that many European nations having great standing armies are now practically bankrupt and in each instance the public is groaning under a burden of taxation which could easily be relieved by limitation of armament."

Cut National Guard and Reserves

The Budget to be transmitted officially to Congress shortly after it convenes Dec. 5 contemplates a reduction in the number of Armory drills for the National Guard from the minimum of 48 set in the National Defense Act to 24 and a similar cut in the number for the Naval Reserve, it is understood.

Sharp reductions also are understood to have been made in the budget estimates of funds for the maintenance and training of the Reserve officers of the Army, the Reserve Officers Training Corps and the Citizens Military Training Camps. While the Budget does not contemplate the entire elimination of any of these activities, it does provide for a curtailment of no small proportions during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933.

It is understood that considerable difference of opinion on the wisdom of the step already has been aroused among the members of the House sub-committee on Army appropriations who have been supplied with an advance copy of the War Department budget for use in the hearings which started last Monday. Only non-military matters were discussed at the sub-committee hearings this week, but Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, is scheduled to be the first witness when the military portion of the bill is taken up Monday, Nov. 28.

Leaders of the National Guard Association are planning a fight to retain the statutory minimum number of drills as provided in the current appropriation bill. Brig. Gen. Claude V. Birkhead, of San Antonio, Tex., recently elected president of the association, has notified his friends in Washington that he will be here shortly and that a meeting of the executive committee will be called to determine their course of action.

Lt. Comdr. M. R. Wortley, of Detroit, National President of the United States Naval Reserve Officers Association, is marshalling his forces to fight the reduction. Commander Wortley has written to the National Directors, District Secretaries, and members of the Legislative Committee of the association, as follows:

"Have reason to believe that drastic cuts have been made in the Budget for both Army and Navy and that Naval Reserve Appropriations will be again materially reduced."

"Although the action of the Budget Bureau cannot be confirmed until the Budget has been presented to Congress by the President, there are strong rumors to the effect that authorized drills for the next fiscal year will be reduced from 48 to 24 both for the Naval Reserve and the National Guard.

"The American Legion Portland Convention adopted as a part of its legislative program, 'an adequate naval reserve with proper provision for annual training cruises and weekly drills.' It is imperative that all members urge similar support from other patriotic and civic organizations and that representatives in Congress be contacted."

"In view of the present economical conditions and widespread unemployment it is more necessary than ever that Naval Reserve and National Guard efficiency be maintained, and this can only be accomplished by sufficient appropriations to provide weekly drills and fifteen days annual training."

Proponents of the cut hold that while some reductions were made in the appropriations for the citizen components for the current year the bulk of the cut in the War Department budget was in funds for the Regular establishment, which now is down to the lowest point possible without cutting personnel and that the additional reduction for next year, demanded by the President and the Bureau of the Budget, can be accomplished only by cutting into components other than the Regulars. They point out that the citizen components received fourteen per cent of the 1932 appropriations; fifteen per cent of the current (1933) appropriations, and that the next (Please turn to Page 263)

Prepare for Army-Navy Game

A joyous throng of nearly 80,000 is preparing to descend on Philadelphia next Saturday, Dec. 3, to witness the 33rd playing of one of the most colorful and exciting of sports events—the Army and Navy football game.

Composing this throng will be a goodly portion of the nation's leaders, cabinet members, Senators, Representatives, members of the diplomatic corps, and officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, their wives, civilian friends and just plain football fans.

Meanwhile the principals in this great spectacle of the modern arena are devoting themselves to the rigorous regime of all cadets and midshipmen, devoting as much time as possible to preparation for the coming Christmas examinations, and looking forward to meeting their traditional rivals.

On the face of records, Army is picked to win, but followers of the classic are not prone to forecast on the Army-Navy game in the same manner as they do other football games, for they know that in previous years when the record of one team would seem to justify forecasting that it would smother the other, the actual playing of the game belied all prognostications.

As it was expressed this week at the office of the Graduate Manager of Athletics at Annapolis, "Undoubtedly the Navy will be the under-dog when the whistle blows for the Army game. In the long series of Service games some of the most thrilling have been those in which one of the teams had to come from behind. Beyond a doubt Navy is considerably stronger at this stage of the season than a year ago—evidence in part appearing in the last two games, the comparative score being: 1931 Maryland 6, Navy 0; 1932 Navy 28, Maryland 7. 1931 Notre Dame 20, Navy 0; 1932 Notre Dame 12, Navy 0. Another slight advantage held by the Navy this season is a two weeks' rest period. Last season Navy faced Pennsylvania on Dec. 5 and Army a week later on Dec. 12. Another little point—Army has yet to hurdle Notre Dame whereas Navy has finished that vital spot on the schedule."

W. G. Crowell, of Swathmore, has been designated as referee for the game. T. J. Thorp, of Columbia, will be umpire; W. M. Hollenback, of Pennsylvania, head linesman, and J. P. Egan, of Duquesne, field judge.

Captaining the Army team is Cadet Milton F. Summerfelt, "Milt," who plays left guard, graduates in 1933. He is 24 years old, six feet tall, and weighs 181 pounds. At High School, Benton Harbor, Mich., Summerfelt won four letters in football and one in track. He attended Northwestern University for one year, winning numerals on the freshman football team. At West Point in his plebe year, he was on the football, boxing and lacrosse squads winning numerals in football and lacrosse. In 1930 he was on the football and lacrosse squads winning a major A in each sport.

The Journal Salutes

This week the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL salutes:

Comdr. Alger H. Dressel, USN, who has been designated to command the Navy airship Macon when it is commissioned.

Maj. John T. Cole, 1st Lt. Earl F. Thomson, and 1st Lt. Carl W. A. Raguse, all of the 9th Cavalry, who won the International Military Trophy at the National Horse Show in New York.

Cpl. Karl T. Gray, USMC, who has been awarded the Navy Cross for "Distinguished Services" in Nicaragua.

Last year he again turned out for football and lacrosse and won major A's in both sports. Summerfelt is a rifle expert, and Cadet Captain in command of Company M.

Midshipman James R. Reedy, of the class of '33, is captain of Navy's team. Like Summerfelt, he plays left guard. "Jim" is 22 years old, stands five feet nine inches and weighs 191 pounds. His home is in Cleveland, Ohio. He has had two previous seasons on the varsity squad, and played guard on the plebe team. Reedy is rated as a good leader, physically rugged and well grounded in the fundamentals of football. Last season he was a member of the varsity boxing and lacrosse squads.

Felix L. "Pick" Vidal, brother of Gene Vidal, former Army football player who graduated in 1916, has done some outstanding performing for the cadets this year. "Pick," a back, won two letters in football and basketball at Central High School, Madison, S. D. He has played on the plebe team, and in 1930 was on the "B" squad, while last year he was on the varsity squad and won a monogram. "Pick," we note, is an academic coach for deficient cadets.

Gordon P. Chung-Hoon, Navy half-back, has attracted most attention on Navy's squad. Chung is from Honolulu. He is rated at the Academy as having more natural ability and more football sense than anybody on the squad. Chung is a good competitor and works better under fire than otherwise. He can kick, pass, and run with the ball with equal ability.

Teams Play Different Styles

The general conception of attack and defense of the rival service teams are widely divergent in character.

The Army offense is what may be termed a modified Warner system in that they use both single and double wing backs and do considerable shifting both in the line and backfield, running from an unbalanced line using linemen to lead the play. The attack is fast, deceptive with plenty of running strength. The Army passing game has been particularly good being well conceived and executed with precision.

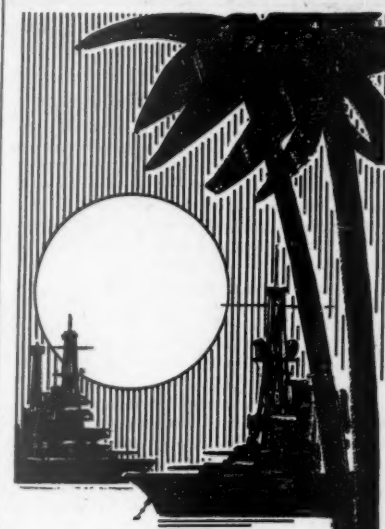

The defensive power of the Army has been apparent all season a strong line with excellent tackles and ends. The style of defensive play that has always been characteristic of Army teams. A line that plays high but get across and is strong and alert.

The Navy system on the other hand is patterned after the Notre Dame system. A shifting backfield and an offensive system based on perfect timing and blocking and individual effort on keymen. It is a system based on perfections of play and developed for long gains. The basic characteristic being speed and precision rather than power or deception.

The defensive system is also patterned after Notre Dame. The linemen are alert and aggressive and use a style particularly effective in blocking any running attacks.

3rd CA Enlistments

For the first time in nearly two years, the Army Recruiting Service operating within the Third Corps Area has been authorized to accept original enlistments of men without previous service for the various local stations.

Seating Arrangements Army-Navy Game, Franklin Field

The Scene—Franklin Field

Franklin Field, where the renewal of the Army-Navy football games will be started on Dec. 3, is an ideally located stadium and one which offers a good view of the playing from all seats. The stadium seats 77,486 spectators and has a parking capacity for 3,500 cars in two parking fields adjacent to it.

While the University of Pennsylvania had had athletic grounds at 37th and Spruce streets from 1885, it was not until April 20, 1895, that Franklin Field, at its present location at 33rd and Spruce streets, was opened under that name. At that date it was formally opened in the presence of city officials and the Provost and Trustees of the University by the first National Intercollegiate and Interscholastic Relay Carnival.

At that time it seated only 20,000, but in 1916 temporary stands were added increasing the capacity to 29,100. In May 1921, the old stands were torn down and construction begun on the new stand-dium. By 1922 the seating capacity was brought to 54,500—still inadequate due to the popularity of football.

In the summer of 1925, work was started on the double decking of the north and south stands, and at the close of that season the east stand was also double-decked. At the close of the 1929 season, and in time for use in the 1930 season, the old wooden west stand was abandoned and a new steel west stand constructed, which can be removed at the close of each season. This new structure, seating 7,464 people, brings the seating capacity to exactly 77,486.

The following street car routes can be used from the center of the city to reach Franklin Field: Subway surface cars from Juniper and Market streets, or stations west thereof, Routes 11, 34, 37, or Market street cars, subway-elevated, to 32nd street station; or, Walnut street cars, routes 13-42, to 33rd street; or, Walnut street bus, route "D" to 33rd street; or, South street cars, route 40, to 33rd street.

Fight Retired Pay Cut

1st Lt. John H. Hoepfel, USA-ret., Congressman-elect from the 12th California District and editor of The Retired Men's News, who retired from the Army as a master sergeant and who was advanced to his present retired rank under the Wartime Rank Act., has filed a bill of complaint in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia against J. Raymond McCarl, Comptroller General of the United States and Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Coleman, Chief of Finance, United States Army, asking that the Court enjoin the defendants from applying the 8-3/10 per cent pay cut provided by Section 106 of the Economy Act of June 30, 1932 to his retired pay. The bill was prepared and filed on behalf of Lieutenant Hoepfel by his attorneys Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, Burr Tracy Ansell and George M. Wilmeth.

Lieutenant Hoepfel sets out in his bill in brief that he was retired in 1921 as a master sergeant after thirty years' service; that by act of Congress approved June 6, 1924, by reason of his commissioned service in the Army during the World War he became entitled to the pay of a retired warrant officer; that he received the pay of retired warrant officer in the sum of $138.75 a month from June 6, 1924, until July 1, 1932, when the Chief of Finance, acting under the compulsion of a decision of the Comptroller General previously rendered to the Secretary of the Navy, applied Section 106 of the Economy Act to his pay so as to reduce it to $133.87 a month which is the amount he would have been entitled to receive as a retired enlisted man of his rank without commissioned service; that Section 106 expressly excepts the retired pay of enlisted men from the operation of 8-3/10 per cent reduction therein provided for the retired pay of other personnel of the Army; and that the action of the Chief of Finance and the decision of the Comptroller General in applying Section 106 to his pay which he is entitled to receive as a retired enlisted man by virtue of the Act of June 6, 1924, are "an unlawful invasion of his rights resulting in irreparable injury to him". The bill closes with a prayer that the defendants be permanently enjoined from applying any reduction in pay provided by Section 106 to his pay as a retired enlisted man under the act of June 6, 1924.

LET'S NOT DECEIVE OURSELVES

OFTEN the temptation arises, when prices are low and bargain-seeking is a fad, to forget many of the sane, sound standards customarily used in choosing our possessions. But nearly always when these standards are forgotten, disappointment lies in wait. Let the purchase of a motor car serve as an example. To the person whose heart is set on owning a Cadillac or LaSalle, a car of lesser name can be nothing more than a compromise. Transportation it may be; but a satisfactory substitute for the desired Cadillac or LaSalle it is not. So let's not deceive ourselves. A Cadillac is a Cadillac and a LaSalle is a LaSalle. And among those whose perception demands the genuine and whose means permit them to buy as they choose, Cadillac and LaSalle continue to have no serious rivals for favor.

• • LaSalle prices from $2395, Cadillac from $2795, f. o. b. Detroit • •

ARMY, 7; W. Va. WESLEYAN, 0

Proving themselves good "mudders" as well as football players, Army took West Virginia Wesleyan 7-0 in Michie Stadium at West Point last Saturday. A driving rain made the ball as hard to hold as the proverbial greased pig, but Army was able to handle it well enough. Vidal's run, in the third quarter gave Army its touchdown, while Brown's placement kick supplied the extra point. In the first half the play was in the mid-field zone with Army several times penetrating to West Virginia's 40-yard line, but failing to get within scoring range. In the second half, after Army had scored the West Virginians took the offensive largely because of Hall's superior punting but could not crash through Army's defenses. The reserves in the cadet line were solid with Bucknam, Gallagher and Stillman throwing back all assaults at the center and Winn and Hutchinson turning back play after play at tackle.

Touchdown—Vidal. Point after touchdown—Brown (placement kick).

Substitutions—Army: Frenzels, Simons, Elliott, Brearly, Quinn, Marthe, Harrell, Lawlor, Lincoln, Summerfelt, Evans, Jablonsky, Armstrong, Fields, Brown, Kilday, Senter, Smaller Vidal. West Virginia Wesleyan: Hall, Coleman, Beveridge, Powell, Neal, Snyder.

Referee—W. D. McGinnis, Lehigh. Umpire—H. McGrath, Boston College. Field judge—D. J. Kelly, Springfield. Linesman—P. H. Sangree, Haverford. Time of periods—15 minutes.

NOTRE DAME, 12; NAVY, 0

Navy gave a big surprise to Notre Dame and to those sports critics who doped the Ramblers to run rough-shod over the Midshipmen by holding the Irish 12-0, last Saturday in Cleveland. As the Associated Press sports writer put it "Notre Dame had what touchdowns there were but Navy had the fight."

Notre Dame made their two touchdowns in the second period, but try as they did they couldn't repeat. Twice in the fourth quarter Navy showed a defense seldom seen by Notre Dame and at one time stopped the Ramblers on the one-foot line.

CUP WINNER CONGRATULATED

The Battle Force football team has been congratulated upon winning the President's Cup in a letter received by the Commander-in-Chief of the United States Fleet from the White House.

"The President congratulates the football team representing the Battle Force on having won the President's Cup for year 1932," the letter states.

"The Secretary of the Treasury has been requested to direct the Commander, Coast Guard Destroyer Force, U. S. Coast Guard, New London, Connecticut to ship the cup to you.

"It is the President's desire that you present the cup to the victorious team with appropriate ceremonies, extending to the team the President's appreciation of the splendid effort and fine sportsmanship necessary for any team to win a

"THE CAR OF THE CAREFUL INVESTOR"

Awards, not words
tell HUPMOBILE'S great story

WHEN an All-American wears a gold football on his watch chain he has no need to tell you how good he is. Why should he? The prize says all there is to be said.

When an American car goes abroad and returns with Europe's highest awards . . . seven straight! . . . what more is there to say? And especially, when you consider that Hupmobile's competition consisted of the finest, costliest cars in the world. The cream of American, German, English, Belgian, Spanish, and French craftsmanship. Too bad there are no glittering trophies specifically for the more prosaic qualities . . . like long life, low maintenance costs, higher trade-in value, all the factors that have made Hupmobile "the car of the careful investor," of the man who thinks as he spends. Then Hupmobile wouldn't have to mention these qualities . . . but just let the cups and medals—the "gold footballs" of motordom—tell that story.

CUP WINNERS CONGRATULATED

The President's Cup, originally placed in competition in 1924 among all-service teams representing the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, was put up as a trophy in the West Coast football rivalry this year, the all-service games having been discontinued. The Battle Force team, having defeated the Army Ninth Corps eleven and the San Diego Marine Corps base team, this fall, captured the West Coast title and with it the Cup.

FT. MONMOUTH SUCCESSFUL

Ft. Howard, Md.—Ft. Monmouth defeated Ft. Howard here last Sunday afternoon, Nov. 20, before a crowd of approximately 700 people by a score of 32-6.

The Ft. Monmouth first team quickly ran up a score of 13 points and was then relieved by the second team. While the second team was on the field Rydeski of Ft. Howard ran 75 yards for a touchdown after which Monmouth's first team went back in the game and scored three more touchdowns. Coates of Ft. Monmouth scored three of the five touchdowns and was the outstanding star of the game.

Ft. Monmouth started the drive for its initial touchdown early in the first period. The visiting eleven took the oval on its own 35-yard line and plowed steadily ahead to have Kelly crash through for the score from the seven-yard stripe.

Coates scored before the second period was two minutes old and added another six points later in the quarter.

Monmouth sent its second team in after the scores and Howard immediately started an offensive drive that carried the ball to the Monmouth 12-yard line. A dropkick was blocked and another Howard assault was stopped on the 20-yard line before the half ended.

Ryduksi's long gallop came early in the third period, and the sounding of the umpire's horn cleared his path to the goal. The blast caused all the Monmouth men to let him slip by unheeded but it was ruled a touchdown as the referee's whistle did not blow.

Kent scored twice for Monmouth in the past period as the regulars returned to finish the game.

Ft. Monmouth has made a record for itself in the following football results for this season:

NAVY PLEBES SET RECORD

The Naval Academy Plebe football team completed its season last Saturday by trimming Cook Academy 6 to 0. Thus the plebes ended the season with a 100 per cent record, not losing a game nor having one point scored on them. It is a record no other Navy plebe team has ever equalled.

MARINES BEAT AIRMEN

Langley Field, Va.—A band of gallant Gold and Blue Gladiators battled the versatile Leathernecks of the Quantico Marines on even terms through two gruelling quarters, but finally bowed to the terrific smashes of Lieut. Bauer and Company, to drop a 13 to 0 decision to their powerful Service football rivals.

The gridiron classic was played here before an overflowing crowd which witnessed a spectacular performance of two formidable elevens of Uncle Sam's Military forces who staged a brilliant battle from the opening whistle to the final gun.

Captain Usher's forces were a game clan who fought through four periods against a team fifteen pounds heavier; not merely beef and brawn, but heady, shifty and intelligent. Lieut. Bauer, 200 pound man-mountain was a threat each time he carried the ball.

SPORT BRIEFS

Schofield Barracks, T. H.—Contrary to general predictions that the current football season would continue nip and tuck until the last game on Nov. 27, the 35th Infantry has taken consistent advantage of their opponents errors and now is firmly holding first place in the Schofield League. With three games to play they have an excellent opportunity of winning two giving them a possible 16 points total. Their closest rivals, the 27th Infantry, with six possible points to gain, would finish with a total of 15 points if all games were won. It now looks like the Cactusmen will be awarded the trophy.

Results of Saturday November 5th: Staff 19, 19th Infantry 13; 13th Field Artillery 23, 21st Infantry 3; 27th Infantry 7, 11th Field Artillery 6. Results of Sunday November 6th: 8th Field Artillery 13, Air Corps 6; 35th Infantry 14, 3rd Engineers 0.

Ft. Sill, Okla.—Tennis at the Field Artillery School so far as tournaments are concerned is ended for the fall season with the announcing of Lieuts. G. F. Wooley and C. P. Townsley as the Doubles champions. After winning through a stiff field to the final bracket, victory was conceded to this pair by their opponents who defaulted. 1st Lt. Roger M. Wicks, tennis representative, has just closed the clay courts for the balance of the winter but states that several tournaments are planned for the spring season.

The All-Post football team which has played two games with strong semi-pro outfits since the close of the regular season at the Field Artillery School, has been entered in the 8th Corps Area football tournament at Ft. Sam Houston and is scheduled to play its first game there on November 26 against an opponent not yet announced. It is expected that 7 other teams from various posts in the corps area will be entered in the tourney.

The 18th Field Artillery poloists have just won the fall high goal polo tournament at the Field Artillery School with the First Field Artillery being returned as winner of the low goal tourney. This marks the end of the outdoor season but the indoor polo season will be started some time next month and at that time trophies are to be presented to the members of these two clubs. The 18th FA team consisted of Lt. J. E. Theimer, Maj. H. D. Jay, and Lieuts. Reynolds Condon and Paul Millar, on the First FA team were Lieuts. H. C. Fowler (F. H. Chaffee), S. H. Fisher and D. S. Babcock.

The 38th Infantry football team at Ft. Sill has repeated its win of last year and is again holder of the football title at the Field Artillery School. The Club came through the season with a clean record of four wins. It was coached by Lt. George Stewart who was assisted by Corp. Joe W. Talley as line coach. Pushing the Doughboys hard was the Staff Troops eleven, coached by Lt. Roger Wicks, which lost but one game and that by a 6-0 score to the Champs.

The 18th Field Artillery broke even for the season with 2 wins and the same number of defeats, the 2nd Bn., First Field Artillery won 1 and lost 3 while the 1st Bn. First Field lost all of its four battles.

Langley Field—A game band of Gold and Blue warriors from Langley Field rolled over the Giants of the New River State Teacher's College of West Virginia, 7 to 6 in one of the most fiercely fought battles seen on the local grounds in years.

Newport, R. I.—Under coach Lt. (jg) J. E. Spahn, USN, the Naval Training Station basketball team has set for itself an ambitious schedule of games as follows (the games to be played at the Training Station are specified "at home"): the team will visit for the others):

Mon., Dec. 5, Bryant Stratton, (at home).
Sat., Dec. 10, M.I.T.
Mon., Dec. 12, Sub. Base, New London.
Mon., Jan. 9, Hartford Prep. Sch., (at home).
Mon., Jan. 16, Upsala College.
Wed., Jan. 18, Panzer College.
Mon., Jan. 23, Dean Academy, (at home).
Thur., Jan. 26, Coast Guard, New London, (at home).
Mon., Jan. 30, Sub. Base, New London, (at home).
Thur., Feb. 2, Portsmouth, N. H., Marines, (at home).
Mon., Feb. 6, Coast Guard, New London.
Thur., Feb. 9, Bryant Stratton.
Thur., Feb. 16, Panzer College, (at home).
Mon., Feb. 20, Mass. State Normal, (at home).
Thur., Feb. 23, Upsala, (at home).
Mon., Feb. 27, Portsmouth, N. H., Marines.

Ft. Francis E. Warren, Wyo.—The First Infantry football team, 1932 champions of the Ft. Francis E. Warren League, travelled to Sidney, Neb., and found plenty of opposition in the Town Team of that place. After four bitterly fought periods of play neither side was able to register a score.

The President's Hundred

In the "President's Hundred," determined this year in the National Rifle Association's regional shoots, are listed 27 Marine rifle shots, 17 Coast Guardsmen, 24 National Guardsmen, 18 civilians, 12 Army and 2 Navy shots, according to an announcement of the National Rifle Association which has just completed rating of the competitors' scores.

The lowest score which succeeded in attaining the "100" was 136 out of a possible 150. The high score was 145.

The shooters who comprise the "President's Hundred" and the meets at which they fired their scores follow:

"Established in obedience to an insistent demand for an official organ for members of the American Defense and those concerned with it, The Army and Navy Journal will be published in the interest of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its interests will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments.—From Vol. 1, No. 1, of The Army and Navy Journal, published August 29, 1893.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1932

"The battle of Waterloo was won on the playing field of Eton."—WELLINGTON.

CONTINUANCE OF THE INIQUITOUS provisions of the Economy Act during the next fiscal year seems assured. Besides the loss of 8 1/4% in pay which will be suffered, the Army and Navy and Marine Corps will be barred from the automatic pay increases due them. There is no doubt as a result of the latter that certain officers will be hit harder than others, and that those who were due for advances during the present and next fiscal year will be deprived of what has been obtained by their brother officers and has been escaped by still others. We point to this fact in order that Congress may understand that haphazard legislation, applied to the Services by the same yardstick as to civilians, produces gross injustice. Fair play commands correction. Going still farther, the injustices committed by the Economy Act upon the Services appear still greater when the treatment accorded to them is compared with that extended to all other branches of the Government. It is unfortunate that the discrimination which common sense calls for is not being sought even by the Congressional Committees charged with the protection of service interests. We urge the Chairmen of the Military and Naval Committees of the House and Senate to insist that the "new deal" which we assume to be the square deal be applied to the Army, the Navy and the Marine Corps. In this connection, we call their attention to the careful pay study made by an Inter-departmental Board and the subsequent report thereon of a joint Congressional Committee. From the data found in those documents the more considerate treatment the Services should have can be formulated into just legislation.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES properly stated recently that the first and most solemn obligation of the Federal Government is National Defense. He said also there could be no further reduction in the Army or Navy at this time. We understand that Mr. Hoover in his consideration of the Service estimates has provided for the present personnel, but in other respects has made cuts. It is unfortunate that this is so. It is recognized there is a nation-wide demand for sweeping economy. Complying therewith, the President announced that an aggregate reduction of $700,000,000 in expenditures would be made, with an increase of $150,000,000 for interest, amortization of the public debt and tax refunds, a net saving of $550,000,000. To balance the budget, even with this slash, further taxes will be imposed. It is to be expected that with President-elect Roosevelt's pledge to cut national expenditures 25%, the Democratic House will seek to go below the estimates which Mr. Hoover will submit, and that especial attention in this connection will be paid to the Army, the Navy and the Marine Corps. It is a matter of satisfaction that President Hoover has determined to veto any Act providing for a personnel reduction. Should he do so, his veto would be sustained. But there is danger in that case of the Service Appropriation bills going over after March 4. If no extra session should be called, then the law for the present fiscal year would be put into force for the next fiscal year.

"MAY THE BEST TEAM WIN NEXT WEEK" is the fine spirit animating the Army and Navy as they look forward to the classic on Franklin Field. It is natural that the Army is anticipating triumph, that the Navy believes that the weapon it has forged will hew the way to the goal. What pleases us is that the game is to be held and that it will be the forerunners of others in the future. It was not to be expected that the two Services would remain at loggerhead over what after all is a sport. Their pride in each other, their identical interests, the necessity of cooperation in peace in preparation for cooperation in war, make them eager to be the comrades in arms which their calling requires. There is another thing in which we find gratification. It is the splendid showing the Service teams have made against those of private institutions. Yale and Harvard and Princeton and all other universities and colleges are able to provide ample time for practice and to develop machines of great power. At West Point and Annapolis, the cadets and midshipmen members of the teams are forced to adhere to fixed schedules. They are required to keep up their marks; to fall below on any week means their removal from the team. Thus a great mental and physical strain is imposed upon the men, such as has no comparability at private institutions. Again, in most of the universities and colleges the students selected for the team have had previous practice at minor schools. At West Point and Annapolis, there is little such material available. It can be said, therefore, that the victories won by the representatives of the Military and Naval Academies are more striking than those of teams of private institutions.

THE COMMERCIAL INTERESTS of the United States should lose no time in protesting against the action of the American Minister to Switzerland in withdrawing opposition to the European proposal for world supervision of private factories engaged in arms manufacture. As a condition of the withdrawal, the Minister stated there must be supervision of government as well as private arms factories and there must be reduction in armaments.

It has been the effort of our commercial competitors to gain knowledge of our trade secrets. It is obvious that if authority be granted to an international commission to supervise our arms production, the next step will be to supervise our aeroplane, radio and other manufactures, until the United States, instead of being free to develop its industries in accordance with American inventive genius and capacity, will be limited by the activities of foreigners and by the competition which foreign firms will be able to develop. If there is anything more important than protection of our own manufacturing secrets we do not know of it. Great Britain is not persuaded that supervision of private business is desirable, and the Japanese insist there shall be less control of their government manufacture. We call on the Chambers of Commerce and Allied Bodies to put an end to a diplomatic activity which is bound to affect adversely American business and American development.

A Sweet One
She: "My brother doesn't smoke, drink, chew, or swear."
Gob: "Does he make all his own dresses, too?"—Arkite.

Proved
The medico had made a thorough examination of the ailing recruit.
"This is undoubtedly a case for psychological treatment," he opined.
"Oh, but I ride a bicycle already," said the recruit.

War Path
Sailor (on leave): "Can I get a room for three other buddies?"
Clerk: "Have you a reservation?"
Sailor: "No! Do I look like an Indian?"
—Newport Recruit.

A Harsh Irritant
Two Striper: "Barber, you've cut my chin. Confounded it, that's the curse of drink."
Barber: "I'm sorry, sir. I suppose it does make the skin tender."
—The Hollander.

R. F. K.—The Adjutant General's Office informs us that Troop H, 15th U. S. Cavalry sailed from San Francisco, Calif., on the U.S.A.T. "Hancock" on December 16, 1901, and arrived in the Philippine Islands January 12, 1902. The troop left the Philippine Islands on the U.S.A.T. "Thomas" October 10, 1903, and arrived at San Francisco, California, on November 11, 1903.

S. L. D.—Application for a Presidential appointment to the Naval Academy should be made to the Secretary of the Navy. The applicant's age should be stated and the name and rank of his father. The application must be in before March of the year the applicant expects to enter the Academy.

E. H. S.—Under a new policy adopted by the War Department, there will be no enlisted men trained as fliers in the future; that is, they will not be given flight training as enlisted men. All enlisted men of the Air Corps to receive training will be designated as flying cadets and must meet the age and other requirements for such. You would seem, therefore, to be barred.

L. L. D.—There is no provision of law for a retired officer to be returned to active duty on the Regular Active List. This can only be done by a special act of Congress and we are advised that the policy of the Navy Department would be to oppose such a measure.

O. K.—A retired enlisted man may have his teeth treated at any Army Dispensary without cost. Application should be made to the nearest Army hospital.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Players in First Army-Navy Game.—In the throng that goes to Philadelphia next Saturday to witness the Army-Navy football game there probably will be a few surviving participants of that historic first inter-service game of 1890.

The Army players on that team were: James T. Moore, '92, left end; Joseph T. Crabbs, '91, left tackle; Truman O. Murphy, '91, left guard; Sterling P. Adams, '92, center; John W. Heavey, '91, right guard; Francis H. Schoeffel, '91, right tackle; Leonard Morton Prince, '92, right end; E. J. Timberlake, '93, left half back; Kirby Walker, '92, quarter back; Dennis M. Michie, '92, right half back; and Butler Ames, '94, full back. Substitutes for army were: Leroy Springs Lyon, '91; Tlemann N. Horn, '91; James B. Cavanaugh, '92; and Elmer Wright Clark, '93. Claude B. Swezey, '92, was manager for the team.

Moore died at Ft. Bliss, Tex., in 1916 as a major in active service. Crabbs retired in 1918 as a colonel of ordnance and later became assistant to the president, Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting and Power Co. Murphy retired as a colonel and is living in Columbus, Ohio. Adams retired as a colonel and made his home in San Antonio, Tex. Heavey retired as a brigadier general and is living in Washington, D. C. Schoeffel retired as a lieutenant colonel for disability from wounds and is living in Rochester, N. Y. Timberlake is now a colonel of Quartermaster Corps and is stationed at headquarters, Fifth Corps Area, Columbus, Ohio. Walker retired as a colonel and is living in San Diego. Michie was killed at San Juan. Ames, who was the son of General Adelbert Ames, resigned as a second lieutenant, returning as a volunteer lieutenant colonel for the Spanish-American war. He later became an officer of the United States Cartridge Company and major general of the Massachusetts State Guard. Lyon died at Camp Taylor, Ky., in 1920 as a colonel of field artillery, having previously served as a major general, National Army. Swezey retired as a colonel, resides in Baltimore and is active in civic affairs.

Of the sixteen or seventeen naval cadets who made the trip to West Point 42 years ago for the first football game between the two academies, many are still in the naval service. Several of the group are dead. The captain and right half back of the '90 team, Charles R. Emrich, died on the China Station in 1900. Left tackle Henry H. Ward, who resigned from the Navy in 1903, is dead, as is right guard Martin E. Trench, a retired captain at the time of his death in 1927. The quarterback Moulton Johnson, later attended the University of Virginia Medical School and was a captain in the Navy Medical Corps, when he died. Harry Smith, later a captain in the Corps of Professors of Mathematics, is another of the absent ones. Of those living, a few are still on the active list, among whom are: Brig. Gen. Rufus H. Lane, Adjutant and Inspector of the Marine Corps, Rear Adm. Noble E. Irwin, USN, and Rear Adm. George W. Laws, USN, left guard, centre, and right end, respectively on the '90 team. The right tackle, Charles F. Macklin, resigned from the Regular Army years ago, but became a member of the Naval Reserve and is now on active duty in the Office of Naval Operations. On the retired list of the Navy are: Rear Adm. John D. Beuret, CC, USN-ret, the right end; Lt. Comdr. R. J. Hartung, USN-ret, the left half back; Capt. Adelbert Althouse, USN-ret, the fullback, Capt. Powers Symington, USN-ret, and Comdr. Henry A. Pearson, USN-ret. The managers of the team, R. R. Belknap and W. H. McGrann, are now on the retired list of the Navy, the former a rear admiral and the latter a commander.

Film on teeth is dangerous! Just look at film under this microscope

Queer germs live on your teeth. Science links them to tooth decay, gum disorders and many other troubles. Germs are glued to teeth by an ever-forming film.

Lactobacilli are the "germs of tooth decay." They feed on the particles of food that cling to teeth. They give off lactic acid that dissolves the tooth enamel, then devours the part beneath. Finally the nerve is reached, often causing abscesses and infection.

Lactobacilli appear in countless numbers. In fact, the film scraped from a single tooth may easily contain one million living organisms. The only way science accepts of destroying germs on teeth is to remove the protective film-coat in which they live and multiply. Film clings stubbornly. It defies all ordinary ways of brushing.

Pepsodent laboratories have developed a new and revolutionary material for removing ugly film and polishing tooth enamel. It is radically different from any found in other toothpastes. This new discovery shows extraordinary power in removing stubborn film and giving brilliant polish.

And more important still, it is absolutely safe. This new cleansing and polishing material is contained in Pepsodent exclusively.

This is what the scientist finds when he analyzes film on teeth

1. A species of Lactobacilli now held responsible for tooth decay by many authorities.
2. A species of Streptococcus Pyogenes that lives in the blood stream and causes serious infection.

USE PEPSODENT TWICE A DAY—SEE YOUR DENTIST TWICE A YEAR

The First Navy Goat.—One of the features of the 42 year old service classic to be staged in Philadelphia next week will be the presence of the traditional Navy goat, the mascot of the Annapolis team. Just how old this tradition is not many persons know, but old-timers declare that the mascot is as old as the service football rivalry itself.

A group of naval officers were on their way from the railroad station at West Point to the playing field on the day of the first football game between the two academies in 1890, according to the story, when it was decided that as so few Navy supporters were on hand at the Army stronghold that the Navy ought to have a mascot. Lt. (jg) Charles H. Harlow, USN, now a retired commodore living in Washington, and Ens. F. B. Sullivan, USN, who later resigned from the service and now lives in Philadelphia, happened upon a young goat grazing along the roadway. Inquiry at a nearby farmhouse disclosed ownership, wherein a dicker was arranged and the Navy rooters became possessed of the said goat for the sum of $1.00. With such a champion on the sidelines, the team from the Naval Academy swept to a 24 to 0 over their rivals, and the goat was forthwith adopted as the Navy mascot.

It is said by some that the story of the Navy goat should be started a few years earlier. In the late eighties, old-timers declare, the warship USS Galena had a goat for a mascot, and the "Galena goat" was a familiar sight to the naval cadets of that day, as the Galena often put into Annapolis.

Army Retirements.—War Department Special Orders this week announced the retirement on Nov. 30 of two officers who have been found by an Army retiring board incapacitated for active service on account of disability incident thereto. They are:

Capt. Harley A. Dresback, QMC, who has been on sick leave at San Francisco, Calif. Captain Dresback will be advanced to the grade of major on the retired list, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved June 21, 1930.

1st Lt. William C. Jones, Inf, who has been on sick leave at Salem, Ore.

Brig. Gen. Robert McCleave, now at Fort Douglas, Utah, has been ordered to his home on or about Nov. 30 to await retirement.

Navy Football Signals in the '90s.—No smart opposing quarterback ever "doped out" the signals of the Navy football teams of the late eighties and early nineties, for no matter how practiced he was at the once common trick of figuring the combinations of numbers as the game progressed, he would only become confused under the system used then. That is unless he had been a sailor himself. For the Navy team of those days used neither the "huddle" nor numbered signals. They had a system of their own. The team would line up, the quarterback would bark: "Signals, spurs load and shift left truck" and the fullback would crash through center. On the next play, he would call out, "rise, tacks and sheets, let go and overhaul the weather lifts," and the old flying wedge would be used. The gunnery and seamanship terms and commands of that day made up the system, and when rolled out of the side of the mouth in the manner of a hard-boiled boss, they must have been mystifying to the opposition. Why the practice was dropped does not appear. Perhaps the other colleges bought nautical textbooks.

Naval Authors.—Naval Officers who publish articles on professional subjects in U. S. Naval Institute Proceedings may forward a copy to the Bureau of Navigation for filing with their record, if they so desire, it was announced at the Department this week.

Air Corps Organization.—Division of troops at Air Corps stations into two parts—station complement and tactical units—form the basis of the new Tables of Organization for that arm, now under consideration. The tables are still in the process of development and have not yet received the approval of the War Department. A discussion of this important problem is contained in the annual report of the Chief of the Air Corps, as follows:

"The Air Corps Tables of Organization are, at the present time, in a somewhat confused state. The first set of Organization Tables, adopted after the Air Corps was reorganized by the National Defense Act of 1920, went into effect in 1921. The Air Corps had not had sufficient experience to determine the principles on which these tables should have been accomplished to be able to give them a form that would be of lasting effect. Furthermore, changes in tactical methods, changes in performance of aircraft, and changes in maintenance and operation since that time have made the necessity for a new set of Tables of Organization paramount. Not only that, but in 1926 when the Air Corps Act authorized an expansion program for the Air Corps, this expansion program was accomplished at the expense of the rest of the Army. The grades and ratings made available to the Air Corps as a result of converting Infantry, Cavalry and Artillery tactical units to Air Corps units did not give to the Air Corps the proportion of grades and ratings that this new and different type of organization requires for efficient operation. Therefore, the putting into operation of the 1926 Air Corps has done considerable to confuse what was already an obsolete set of Organization Tables. The Air Corps is now at work toward the development of Organization Tables upon principle that will fit our present requirements and our present methods.

"These tables are now only in the process of development. The principle along which they are being developed have not received the approval of the War Department. One of the principles on which these new tables are being developed is that the troops at Air Corps stations where tactical units are located will be divided into two parts, as follows:

- (1) The station complement.
- (2) Tactical units.

"The station complement will consist of all administrative troops including guard, fatigue, Quartermaster, Signal Corps, and Ordnance troops, as well as headquarters, maintenance, etc. It will always remain at the station. It is contemplated that there will be no special duty detachments from the tactical units to the station complement but that special duty shall be from the station complement to the tactical units. By the creation of the station complement, it is believed that it will be possible to reduce the size of the tactical units to the number of men actually necessary for tactical purposes and will create a situation where tactical commanders will have 100 per cent of their officers and men constantly available for tactical training. In time of war when Air Corps tactical units are ordered away from stations, each Air Corps permanent station will continue to operate either as a flying school, training additional pilots for replacement, or that station will operate as a basis for the creation of new tactical units. It will be seen, therefore, that this station complement plan fits in admirably with the war-time operation and eliminates the necessity for a new organization for training purposes and is a nucleus for the organization of new units. It is expected that every effort will be made to reduce special equipment in our new Tables of Organization to an absolute minimum and to use commercial equipment to a maximum which, of course, is readily available. Every effort is being made in our new tables to plan to use labor-saving devices as station equipment so as to reduce the necessity for manpower for fatigue purposes to a minimum."

Militia Bureau Report

Extracts from the annual report of the Chief of the Militia Bureau, Maj. Gen. George E. Leach, follows:

During the year just passed the National Guard has more than justified the statements made in the report of a year ago. The strength, being limited, has changed but little, the aggregate on June 30, as shown in detail by Table IX and Appendix A, being 187,413 of all ranks, with an average attendance of 165,449 at armory drills for the year and 180,955 at the field training camps.

The increase in permanence of personnel, both commissioned and enlisted, and the continued stabilization in organization are particularly marked. There are no longer any major problems of maintenance in the National Guard. The time of the officers is, therefore, left much more free and open for matters of training and the building up of real efficiency. That the worth of the National Guard is recognized to a greater degree than ever before by the community and State is evidenced by the increasing number of high-class men constantly seeking enlistment. Never before has there been a time in the history of the country when the public appreciation of the value of, and the interest in, the National Guard were at such a high point, or when attendance at armory drills and field training camps ran so high. With all this interest manifest, and with the superior type of personnel prevailing, it follows as a natural consequence that the general all-around efficiency of the National Guard has forged beyond any previous mark attained.

A remarkable feature of this development and improvement is that it has been accomplished without increase in the aggregate maintenance cost to the Government. On the contrary, the total appropriations for the support of the National Guard during this past fiscal year were more than half a million dollars less than during the previous year, in spite of the heavy increase in disbursements to members of the guard for armory drill attendance and field training.

The National Guard is very well supplied with the equipment necessary for training purposes, except as to motor transportation and modern antiaircraft matériel. It would be economy to replace the old war-time motor equipment with something newer and lighter, better suited to present needs, and thus do away with the excessive maintenance costs incident to keeping this obsolete transportation in running order.

Training

The average attendance at armory drills this year has been the highest in the history of the National Guard, being approximately 87 per cent of the authorized strength and this increased attendance is clearly apparent in training results.

The attendance at the field training camps of last year reached the unprecedented figure of 94.9 per cent of the total authorized strength.

There was a slight improvement in small-arms practice during the past year. However, the degree of proficiency attained cannot be considered as entirely satisfactory.

Army Service Schools

During the past school year 691 officers and 310 enlisted men made application to attend various courses at the Army service schools. Funds were available to authorize approximately 40 per cent of the number of applicants. The number of requests for attendance is increasing from year to year. The benefits derived by selected officers and enlisted men from the special instruction given at the service schools is reflected to a marked degree in the training of the entire National Guard. The importance of this form of military training is emphasized in the National Guard by the limited time available for training and the wide distribution of National Guard organizations. In view of the above a substantial increase in the appropriation for school purposes is strongly recommended if and when funds are available.

REPORTS OF CORPS AREA COMMANDERS

The training of the National Guard is in large degree under the supervision of the commanding generals of the various corps areas and departments. Where their cordial and helpful relationships with the State authorities, their interest in matters pertaining to the National Guard, and their support and cooperation with the Militia Bureau have played a part in the advancement of the National Guard during the year, their efforts are sincerely appreciated by this office.

The following digests taken from their reports are interesting:

First Corps Area

Weak points.—There are no outstanding weak points observed.

Strong points.—The continued interest of all officers and enlisted men in training, and especially the great interest evinced in extension courses by both officers and enlisted men.

The generally efficient coordination of National Guard air forces with respect to air missions performed for Coast Artillery units of the National Guard during the field training season.

The practical state of completion of the several National Guard camp sites, as well as the National Guard areas in the several concurrent camps of this corps area.

Second Corps Area

Weak points.—(1) More opportunity should be afforded subordinate officers and noncommissioned officers to exercise command and initiative.

(2) Full use is not made of graduates from the various service schools in the conduct of training.

(3) There has been marked improvement in the matter of property care and responsibility during the past year. With the exception of the State of Delaware, however, the standard attained is not what might reasonably be expected.

(4) Some organizations are handicapped by lack of proper armory facilities. This is especially true of organizations stationed in Jersey City, whose armory was destroyed by fire in June, 1927. The States are apparently doing everything in their power to remedy these conditions, but the programs of new construction adopted by the State authorities have been adversely affected by general economic conditions.

(5) The standard of efficiency attained in small-arms practice is not what it should be.

(6) There were too many recruits in camp during the last field training period. Efforts have been made by the States to remedy this and there should be a distinct improvement during the coming season.

Strong points.—(1) High attendance at armory drills, officers' schools, and annual camps.

(2) Capable and well-qualified officers. The staffs of the Twenty-seventh and Forty-fourth Divisions are particularly outstanding in efficiency.

(3) Excellent morale and discipline.

(4) Well established summer training camps.

(5) Smaller annual turnover in personnel.

Third Corps Area

Weak points.—(1) The National Guard, as a whole, is weak in administrative duties. Too much "follow up" and corrective correspondence is required.

(2) Inadequacy of armories in many localities which handicaps instruction and prevents proper care of property.

(3) Officers, in general, lack opportunities and time for tactical and administrative training.

(4) Promotion stagnation among commissioned grades tends toward lethargy and apathy.

(5) Insufficiency of State funds for the proper care of property and for tactical inspection by field officers.

(6) Lack of proper schooling of officers and noncommissioned officers.

(7) Insufficient knowledge of weapons.

(8) Insufficient qualifications in marksmanship.

(9) Many inadequately trained officers and noncommissioned officers.

(10) Many field officers fail to visit units not at their home stations; also are absent at annual armory inspection of their units.

(11) Insufficient local small-arms (Continued on Next Page)

target ranges.

(12) Lack of equipment.

(13) Inadequate Federal appropriations, resulting in serious shortage of equipment and serviceable motor transportation.

Strong points.—(1) The presence within the State of Pennsylvania of a complete division, plus cavalry, antiaircraft artillery and aviation, is a distinct training advantage, especially for the staffs.

(2) The strong point of the guard has been the increased efficiency from year to year, being organized and receiving Federal support under the national defense act, and its tendency to subscribe thoroughly to the national plan of defense as evidenced by the willingness of officers and men to serve gladly at this period of the country's unrest.

(3) All division, brigade, and regimental commanders have war experience and are qualified for their positions.

(4) Very high morale and esprit.

(5) Personnel physically and mentally above average.

(6) High order of loyalty to military superiors and to country.

(7) Interest and pride in their military organizations.

(8) Average enlisted man, of a high type, willing and anxious to learn and be trained.

(9) A desire to perfect training.

(10) Devotion to duty by many officers and men, using much of their own time.

(11) Interest in extension courses.

(12) Fine interest in marksmanship.

(13) Readiness to meet any State need, in maintenance of order and law enforcement.

Fourth Corps Area

Weak points.—Lack of property responsibility in several States and failure to adjust accounts. The preservation and care of Federal property has been made one of the major efforts, and progress is being made in the adjusting of accounts and holding company officers responsible for loss of property. Field Artillery instruction is being stressed in the conduct of fire, officers found deficient to be reported by name in the field inspection reports of 1932 with a view to correcting this deficiency. In some Field Artillery regiments there are many officers unable to conduct fire efficiently.

Strong points.—Excellent interstate cooperation, amicable relations, eagerness to obtain instruction and carry out the plans of this headquarters and the Militia Bureau.

Fifth Corps Area

Weak points.—There are no outstanding weak points. A training difficulty, which is arising as the supply of World War veterans decreases, is the lack of experience on the part of company officers and noncommissioned officers. Many of these now have had no experience other than with the unit to which assigned and their knowledge of military training is limited to the methods used in that unit. Other than contacts made during field training periods, no opportunity is available to them for improving themselves along practical lines. The instructor is able to assist in this to a very limited degree, especially in those cases where his units are widely scattered and his trips infrequent. On such visits the instructors' time is ordinarily devoted to routine duties and to such theoretical instruction as time will permit. The lack of troop schools conducted by Regular Army personnel and experienced National Guard officers is keenly felt, particularly by the new officers who are attempting to do their best, but through lack of experience and proper training are handicapped.

Strong points.—(1) Improved quality of personnel.

(2) Increased interest in military training.

(3) Improvement in interior administration.

(4) Improvement in field training facilities.

(5) The ability of two Infantry divisions and one Cavalry brigade to take the field for local or national emergencies with the least practicable delay and in condition to function, at present strength, as combat forces.

Sixth Corps Area

Weak points.—(1) Excessive turnover in enlisted personnel caused by lack of care in accepting undesirable type of recruits and the ease with which discharges are obtained. Some improvement, however, has been noted during the past year.

(2) Indifference with respect to the retention in the service of inefficient officers, and almost universal failure to enter known deficiencies on efficiency reports.

(3) Inadequate training of junior officers in the fundamentals of basic training and in their own duties and insufficient training of combat specialists, such as scouts, automatic riflemen, grenadiers, agents, and runners.

(4) Lack of officers in staff groups of Infantry units, most especially in battalions, due to present tables of organization. It is recommended that the maintenance of brigade and battalion staffs on a war-strength basis be authorized.

(5) Lack of suitable range facilities for antiaircraft service practice within the corps area.

Strong points.—(1) Organization, discipline, and training in strict accordance with Regular Army methods, including a clear recognition of the functions and responsibilities of commanders in the chain of command.

(2) Continued marked loyalty and enthusiasm of officers due to leadership of higher military authorities of the National Guard.

(3) Large proportion of officers, especially in field grades, with World War experience and small turnover in this class of officers. Strong nucleus of excellent officers who are high-class men with sound military viewpoint and unquestioned probity who are interested in the welfare of the National Guard.

(4) Liberal financial support by State legislatures and active moral support by communities in which organizations are located.

(5) Excellent small arms range at Camp Logan, Ill., which is also suitable and available for gunnery practice by the Thirty-third Division (aviation).

(6) The location of the Thirty-third Division command and staff (with few exceptions) and the command and staffs of two brigades, in Chicago.

(7) Excellent armory and camp facilities, with few exceptions.

(8) Commendable interest in school work by officers and noncommissioned officers as evidenced by enrollments in Army extension courses and the number of subcourses completed during the year.

Seventh Corps Area

Weak points.—None outstanding.

Strong points.—None outstanding.

Eighth Corps Area

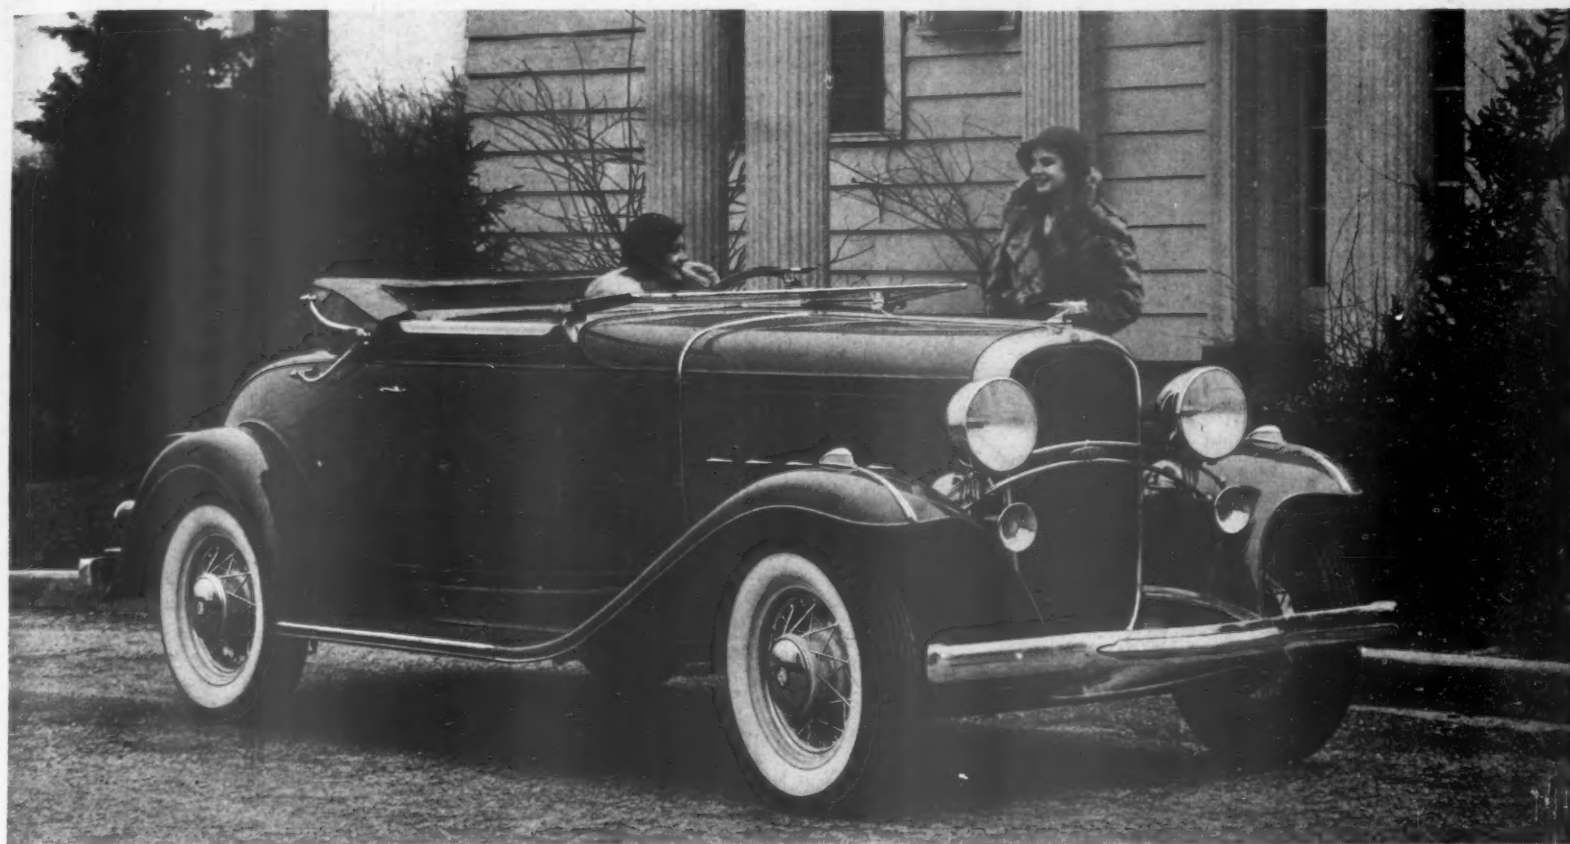

Weak points.—(1) Proficiency in use of primary weapons. Unit commanders, however, are making considerable progress along this line.

(2) Lack of State-owned armories, which is a State function. In many cases the buildings are small, not sufficient room for drill purposes, not arranged for proper storage and care of property, lack locker and dressing facilities and any form of club or amusement rooms. Many are not fireproof.

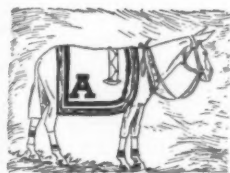

(3) Old motor equipment. The equipment is kept in as good condition as possible, but it is simply old and worn out and cannot last much longer.

(4) Lack of horses, especially for field maneuvers. Rented animals are not satisfactory.

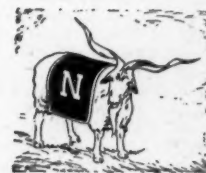

Strong points.—(1) High morale and (Please turn to Page 256)

On December 3rd, and every day, it will show its worth in the exacting field of modern motoring. . . . No doubt of this outcome, however. Oldsmobile—both the Six and the Straight Eight—has proved itself to a multitude of motorists, year after year. . . . Oldsmobile packs more speed than you'll ever need to use, and it is speed that never slackens, no matter how long the run. Oldsmobile will take any punishment—for thousands of hard-driven miles. Oldsmobile displays brilliance and a degree of all-round dependability that no car at anything near its price has ever approached. . . . There is no sounder investment in motoring satisfaction today than the Oldsmobile Six or the Oldsmobile Eight. They are in every sense quality cars that do not put a premium on quality. OLDSMOBILE listed men who served as commissioned officers during the World War affects the pay of approximately two thousand such men and, in the case of many of them, in sums of greater than the monthly reduction of $4.88 which Lieutenant Hoeppel alleges he has suffered. It is foreseeable that a decision on the merits of Lieutenant Hoeppel's bill would, in view of the express exception in Section 106 of the pay of the retired enlisted personnel, result in the granting of the injunction sought by Lieutenant Hoeppel. Such an injunction if granted should naturally have administrative application with equal force to release from the operation of Section 106 the pay of the two thousand other retired enlisted men situated similarly to Lieutenant Hoeppel. Although neither the Comptroller General nor the Chief of Finance has yet filed his answer to the bill in this case it is believed, however, that their answers when filed will vigorously deny the jurisdiction of the Court to render a decision on the merits by reason of Section III of the Economy Act which provides: "No court of the United States shall have jurisdiction of any suit against the United States or * * * against any officer * * * of the United States arising out of the application of any provision of this title, unless such suit involves the Constitution of the United States". Counsel for Lieutenant Hoeppel informed the JOURNAL that, if the question of the Court's jurisdiction under Section III is raised, they are prepared to argue strongly in favor of such jurisdiction on several grounds.

Miss Betty Hall is chairman of the membership committee.

esprit de corps.
(2) High class of personnel and decreased turnover.
(3) Increased scope of training, including command and staff training and field exercises calculated to stimulate actual warfare conditions.
(4) Messes and mess management.
(5) Increasingly friendly and cooperative relations between these headquarters and State authorities and the instructors and the guard.

Ninth Corps Area

Weak points.—(1) Failure in some States to carry out the regulations for protection against typhoid fever and smallpox. However, a constant effort is being made to immunize all personnel.
(2) Failure of certain States to provide suitable armories. This condition is being improved materially from year to year.

(3) Thirty-four units without home target ranges. Effort has continually been made to obtain a suitable range site in the vicinity of Los Angeles, Calif., and when same is obtained the number will be reduced by 21 units.

(4) Failure to make sufficient use of Federal animals for draft purposes in Field Artillery units.

Strong points.—(1) Care of Federal property and condition of storeroom, both State and unit.

(2) Care of animals and stables.
(3) Care of motor equipment.
(4) High type of enlisted personnel.
(5) High state of morale and esprit.
(6) Care and use of airplanes.
(7) Condition of records.
(8) High state of discipline.

(9) Increased interest in, and attendance at, troops schools. This is particularly noticeable in the great increase in extension school work as evidenced by the fact that nearly all units had 100 per cent of their officer personnel enrolled. In addition, many enlisted men are pursuing the courses in preparation for National Guard and reserve commissions.

(10) The continued high standard set in the administration of the affairs of the National Guard by the State military authorities and unit commanders.

(11) The excellent cooperation shown by State military authorities in all contacts with these headquarters.

(12) Continued improvement in the supervision and control of training by higher commanders.

Hawaiian Department

Weak points.—(1) Turnover of personnel.

(2) Varied racial composition.
(3) Limited source from which to procure the most satisfactory officer personnel.

(4) Limited and inadequate Territorial financial support.

Strong points.—(1) Excellent state of discipline and morale.

(2) Willingness to learn.
(3) Good facilities for concentration for field training.

(4) Good attendance at armory and field training.

More Size and Greater Riding Ease . . . Pontiac is the biggest, longest car on the market at its price—the wheelbase of the Six is 114 inches. That means both roomy comfort in the luxurious new Fisher bodies, and exceptionally fine riding qualities under every condition of road and load.

Better Performance . . . Pontiac's large, capable, easy-working motors are now smoother and more powerful than ever. The Six—a car of flashing response and great flexibility—gives you well over 70 real miles an hour. The V-8, even faster, is one of today's most thrilling all-round performers. Both are outstanding General Motors values.

Lower Prices and Economy . . . Pontiac introduced its 1932 cars at the lowest prices in Pontiac history. Then in the Spring, prices were reduced as much as $50 a car. Now—monthly payments are actually only a little more for a fine large Pontiac than for the lowest priced cars. Running expense and maintenance, too, are remarkably low.

ties in the Army and the Navy. Creation of a Public Works Administration, with rotation thereto of Engineer officers of the services for duty in connection with river and harbor housing.

There are rumors circulating that action of some kind is to be proposed with reference to the Coast Guard. The prospect is that its duties in connection with prohibition will be eliminated as a result of the appeal of the 18th amendment of the Constitution which, of course, will lead to a curtailment of its activities. Appropriations will be cut and this will lead to a reduction of its strength in personnel. One of the ideas presented is that the Coast Guard should be consolidated with the Navy, but both these services would oppose anything of the kind. The confusion that would arise in connection with the amalgamation of the personnel, the departure of the Navy from its mission of defense for the purpose of enforcing custom laws and the fact that if the Navy took the Coast Guard over it would have to maintain it as a separate branch for the work to which it is accustomed, are all offered as arguments against consolidation; and it is stated that these points of view have strongly appealed to the President.

The Coast and Geodetic Survey is charged with the survey of the coast of the United States and its possessions and with the publication of navigational charts of these regions. The Hydrographic office is charged with topographic and hydrographic surveys in foreign waters and on the high seas, preparation of the printing of maps, charts, etc. The Coast and Geodetic Survey is charged with the determination of geographic positions by astronomic observations and by triangulations and traverse. The Naval observatory is engaged in astronomic work, particularly in connection with the sun, fundamental stars, etc. Thus, while there is a difference in duties the President has found duplication and this he is seeking to eliminate. When Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Hoover recommended that the Naval hydrographic office be taken over by the Coast and Geodetic Survey and there are some reports that this still is his view. The indications are, however, that he will favor the Navy taking over the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Prior to July 1, 1917, officers of the Coast and Geodetic Survey were on a civil service status but in that year a law was passed commissioning them and granting them the same retirement privileges as officers of the Navy. There are 171 officers commissioned in the survey. The men are under contract. The head of the survey has the rank of captain with the pay of the lower grade of real admiral. There are seven captains; 10 commanders; 17 lieutenant commanders; 47 lieutenants; 61 lieutenants (junior grade) and 29 ensigns. Of course, if the hydrographic work should be transferred to the Coast and Geodetic Survey that service would claim it must have additional personnel, which would destroy any idea of economy. If transferred to the Navy, either the survey officers will have to be retired or amalgamated, and the latter the Navy will strenuously resist.

The Budget Bureau has been especially investigating the question of supplies, munitions and ordinary. Under the policies in force in the War and Navy Departments, there has been the closest cooperation in purchases, especially of munitions. The facts in connection therewith have been presented to the President and the Director of the Budget. But the reports current indicate that a single purchase system is under consideration. This would affect the activities of the Quartermaster Department and the Naval Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, besides the Ordnance branches of the two services. In addition, there are reports of unified control of aeronautical purchases.

There is nothing new in the proposal for a public works agency. The President made such a recommendation during the last session of Congress. No action was taken, largely because of the recognition that the transfer of river and harbor works to civilian administration, even though under the immediate direction of engineer officers, would not assure the honesty which always has marked this construction.

There is little likelihood of adoption of the President's proposal during the short session. The Democrats have their own plan of a Department of National Defense, and that they intend to put into effect when they have control of the Government.

the Marine Corps posts, Parris Island, S. C., Quantico, Va., or San Diego, Calif. Six hundred men will be evacuated from Nicaragua by the first of January, but the commissioning of new naval vessels and a new naval station will more than offset this number, it is said.

The President's budget will not be made public until Congress convenes a week hence, but interested members of House and Senate have been furnished with advance information as to reductions made. Some opposition to the cut is expected to be forthcoming from friends of the Marine Corps in congressional circles, as it is felt by many that this branch of the National Defense has suffered unduly during the past two years. If the present proposed slash of 1,700 men is put through, the Marine Corps will have been reduced just 25 per cent since 1930, when the strength was 18,000. Approximately $1,500,000 will be saved under the curtailment it is estimated.

Where the reduction can be made is a problem. The Marine detachments on naval vessels cannot be curtailed, it is said, for with the reduced complements now in effect on all classes of vessels, Marines would need to be replaced by bluejackets if the former are withdrawn. Marine guards at naval shore stations are already skeletonized, and any reductions would make necessary the employment of civilian watchmen, it is said.

The new airship base at Sunnyvale, Calif., will be commissioned within the next few months and 300 Marines are required for the complement of this station. The cruiser Indianapolis requires a detachment of Marines and the vessels now under construction will have to be assigned men. These replacements, it is said, will more than overbalance the men made available by the withdrawal from Nicaragua.

It is conjectured that Parris Island may be closed, and that Quantico and San Diego will be materially curtailed.

Approve New Army Ration

The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in leading cities on Nov. 16 shows decreases for the week of $79,000,000 in loans and investments, $13,000,000 in time deposits and $18,000,000 in Government deposits, and increases of $79,000,000 in net demand deposits and $50,000,000 in reserve balances with Federal reserve banks.

Loans on securities declined $15,000,000 at reporting member banks in the New York district, $12,000,000 in the Boston district and $46,000,000 at all reporting member banks. "All other" loans declined $23,000,000 in the New York district and $36,000,000 at all reporting banks.

Holdings of United States Government securities increased $22,000,000 in the New York district, and declined $13,000,000 in the Chicago district, all reporting banks showing a net increase of $18,000,000 for the week. Holdings of other securities declined $15,000,000.

Borrowings of weekly reporting member banks from Federal reserve banks aggregated $98,000,000 on November 16, the principal changes for the week being a decline of $4,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco and an increase of $3,000,000 at Atlanta.

The proposal for a Department of National Defense will not be acted upon until the next Congress, according to democratic leaders. Representative Cochran, of Missouri, will offer the measure, which will be considered by the House Military Committee. In the meantime, hungry democrats are licking their chops over the aviation secretaries in the Departments of War, Navy and Commerce. Five names thus far suggested are Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, USA-ret; Reed Landis, of Chicago, an Army Ace during the World War; John Dwight Sullivan, a war flier, who is practicing law in New York; C. V. Whitney, who was defeated for the House by Representative Bacon; and J. Carroll Cone, of Little Rock, Ark. Whitney, it is said, can have the choice of the War or Navy job, and Cone is proposed for the War or Commerce office.

There is a real bargain in automobiles nowadays, automobiles that are the last word in the art. No officer or non-commissioned officer should be without one—their duties, for the most part, so require. Look over the automobile advertisements in this issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL. You can take your choice and you can't go wrong. There are Buick, Cadillac, Oldsmobile and Pontiac, all of the splendid General Motors Group, and there is also the well known Hupmobile. Take your pick and make a purchase now.

Secretary of the Navy Adams is being mentioned as a possible successor to Dr. Abbott Lawrence Lowell as President of Harvard University. Mr. Adams was once Treasurer of the Institution. The Navy, in the light of its experience with the Secretary, can tell Harvard that it would be fortunate to get him.

President-elect Roosevelt has made no mistake in selecting Rear Adm. Cary T. Grayson, USN-ret, as chairman of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Inaugural Committee. Dr. Grayson, who is known to fame as the White House physician during the Roosevelt and Wilson Administration, and particularly his intimacy with President Wilson, promises to be quite as close to the New President. He is a born executive and will handle the Inaugural ceremonies with efficient understanding.

My sympathy is extended to Brig. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, who has just been ordered home from Paris, where he has been acting as Military Attache. An S. O. was issued authorizing for him a "per diem of $600 for travel beyond the limits of Continental United States." Some hawkshaw discovered this allowance, and a new S. O. has been issued putting the per diem at $6.00. A net loss of $594 per day. These gimlet eye officials get altogether too careless with their decimal points.

Will Senator Hale, of Maine, transfer for the short session from the Chairmanship of the Naval to that of the Appropriations Committee of the Senate? The probability is that he will, for the power of the Appropriations is far greater than that of the Naval Committee. In the next Congress, with the democrats in control, Senator Hale would be in a better position to help National Defense on the Appropriations than his present committee. Should the Senator leave the latter his successor as Chairman for the short session will be Senator Oddie, of Nevada.

I note that Governor Judd, in his annual report, has given a liberal coat of whitewash to Hawaii and assailed "a portion of the American press and certain other agencies, intent upon furthering their own peculiar purposes." He asserts the Massie occurrence was "practically an isolated case of its kind in our midst." Let us hope there will be no recurrence of a crime that shocked America and brought out anew the situation of the Islands, which is that of a defense post for the Nation. Hawaiians should not forget this fact.

Super-Liners for Defense

(Marine Journal)

Under present conditions the building of super-liners cannot be wholly justified on grounds of commercial operation. In order to justify the building of these huge, speedy craft it is necessary to segregate the advantages to be gained into three categories. The first of these is the value of such craft as naval auxiliaries; second, their tendency to attract the cream of the ocean travel trade; and third, the national prestige that comes with the introduction of such vessels into any nation's commercial service. Each of these reasons is important and all of them interact one with another to make the modern super-liner an indispensable factor in the equation of sea power.

It is a foregone conclusion that naval considerations enter largely into the current construction of this type of ship for the navy in possession of high speed gun platforms of this type will have a decided advantage over an opponent not so provided. Hence, the building by one nation of these formidable potential cruisers of war, sets a precedent that all nations must follow if they intend to retain a major share of influence at sea.

Whenever new super-liners are announced, it will be noted that they are always rated as faster and in other respects an improvement over the super-liners of rival flags. One of the greatest naval powers in the world has actually delayed building on one pretext or another with the announced intention of surpassing in speed and engineering super-liners already in course of construction or in service under rival flags.

While the race for naval armament in the battleship and armored cruiser categories has been partially halted by agreement—(for how long no one may safely predict)—no restrictions whatever have been placed on the construction of super-liners which, in reality, are unarmored cruisers and commerce destroyers of the most formidable type. Such vessels can be built and placed in service without arousing pacifist opposition or endangering diplomatic agreements and treaty obligations.

Ship repair work is under way now on a large scale at the Curtis Bay depot. The tugboat Manhattan, which is used for enforcing anchorage regulations in New York harbor, is being overhauled and inspected at the station, as is the Winnisimmet, attached to the Customs Service for duty in Baltimore harbor. The cutter Mojave, after its annual overhauling, left for Boston, its home station.

The Coast Guard Academy football team closed their football season by playing Massachusetts State College at Amherst, Mass. Of the small-college teams in the East this one has been conceded to be the leader.

Trailing by the score of 20-0 at the end of the first three periods of the game, the Cadets put on a scoring drive, pushed over two touchdowns and an extra point and came within a touchdown of tying the heavily favored Massachusetts State eleven, led by the nation's outstanding scorer, Louis Bush. For the first time this season, Bush was stopped from making two scores a game. In all seven of the previous State games he has scored at least twice a game and in some has succeeded in making three touchdowns. The powerful Cadet defense, however, kept the speedy halfback from getting loose and with only a few seconds to go the Cadets were headed for another touchdown when the final whistle blew making the score 20-13 in favor of the Staters.

The outstanding features of this game were the blocking and passing of Cadet Forney; the work of Cadet McCaffery as quarterback; the blocking and defensive work of Cadet David; the ball carrying of Cadet Lathrop, and the aggressiveness of the line.

The entire Cadet Corps accompanied the team to Amherst and paraded on the field prior to the game. Following the game they journeyed to Northampton to enjoy the annual Cadet football banquet which concludes the Cadet football season each year.

This game closed the football career of six prominent players who will graduate next May.

Cut National Guard and Reserves

budget contemplates returning them to 14 per cent.

The War Department may be expected to put up a vigorous defense of the National Guard and Reserves if given the opportunity. It will be recalled that General MacArthur "went to the mat" for them when assaults were made on their funds by Congressmen in the last session.

It will be the third time within a little more than a year that efforts have been made by the Bureau of the Budget to curtail Army drills of the National Guard. It will be recalled that last November the President, through the bureau of the budget, directed that the Army incur no deficiencies, which made it necessary for the Militia Bureau to order a reduction in the number of Army drills from 48 to 43. However, on the urgent insistence of General MacArthur, who offered to save the situation by transferring appropriations from the Regular Army to the National Guard the President authorized correction of the situation. The following month when the President sent the budget to Congress that budget contained a reduction of more than a million and a half in National Guard funds and a provision that the number of drills should be curtailed to come within this decreased amount. But the proposal didn't "get to first base" in Congress, being knocked out by the House Appropriations committee.

Inspector General's Report

Extracts from the annual report of Maj. Gen. J. F. Preston. The Inspector General for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932, follow:

Inspections

The Department has been instrumental in bringing about the correction of many irregularities, improvements in methods and procedure, exchange of ideas and very material economies in expenditure of funds and supplies.

The exceptional opportunities enjoyed by officers of the Department to come into intimate contact with the personnel of the Army, to impart information and give advice to those who appear to need it, and to those who ask it, have been utilized to maintain the standards of the service and to effect improvements.

The policy of the Department to be always helpful, to accompany adverse criticisms with corrective suggestions, to refrain from administering anything in the nature of admonition or reprimand, and to be always courteous, tolerant and appreciative has been scrupulously lived up to by officers of the Department. Inspectors general have noted and commented upon the favorable and receptive manner in which Army personnel in general have responded to the attitude of inspectors in these respects.

Investigations

Investigations conducted during the fiscal year embraced a wide range of subjects. A considerable number of the cases were based upon complaints and allegations of varied nature. Fifty-nine reports of investigations requiring action of the War Department were received in this office for review and for recommendation to the Secretary of War. As a result, considerable sums of money were ordered collected from individuals to be applied to the adjustment of losses of public and quasi-public funds and property, where the losses were traceable to neglect on the part of responsible persons.

Discipline and Conduct

Inspectors general report that the state of discipline of both officers and enlisted men in general is excellent.

There were approximately 2,800 desertions in 1932 compared with 5,076 in 1931. Separations by purchase of discharge, sentence of civil court, minority and fraudulent enlistment were less than in 1931. These facts indicate an improved state of discipline and conduct.

Separations on account of sentence of general court-martial and inaptitude were greater than in 1931, which would indicate in part that organization commanders are availing themselves of opportunities to get rid of undesirable to a greater extent than heretofore, another indication of improved conditions.

The improved conditions noted above are partly attributable to unemployment in civil life. The effect of the unemployment situation upon the Army is further reflected in the more numerous and better type of applicants for enlistment.

Every inspector who has expressed himself has reported that performance of duty and discharge of responsibilities by officers continue to measure up to the high standards always maintained by the Army.

Priority in Assignment of Officers

It is desired to emphasize the view referred to in last year's report that the interests of the Army would be advanced if troop units would be first in priority of assignment of officers, if they would be kept to full commissioned and enlisted strength, and if assignments of officers to troop units could be at least for four years.

Chief Signal Officer's Report

Extracts from the annual report of Maj. Gen. Irving J. Carr, Chief Signal Officer, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932, follow:

Radio Communications

The number of radio sets authorized for the combat arms has increased to such an extent that the simultaneous operation of these sets in a field army appears impracticable. This conclusion is based on:

The lack of a sufficient number of channels to permit the simultaneous operation of more than a small fraction of the authorized number of sets without interference, and

The apparent impracticability of furnishing the necessary number of qualified radio operators within a reasonable time in an emergency.

The results of a study of this situation were submitted to the War Department, which announced the following policy restricting the number of radio sets:

1. Except for aircraft, mechanized forces and other rapidly moving units which are unable to install wire communication, only such numbers of radio sets will be authorized as are essential to provide the minimum instantaneous communication necessary.

2. All other units will depend primarily on wire circuits for electrical communication. Radio will be considered available for emergency use only.

3. The paralleling of wire circuits by radio channels will be considered abnormal.

It is believed that the above limitation will prevent serious confusion and a possible failure of radio communication in a major mobilization.

Homing Pigeons

Due to the importance of this auxilliary means of communication in war, the retention of the homing pigeon in our peace time Army is well warranted. Excellent strains of pigeons are being bred and trained at Signal Corps lofts. Every effort is made to bring to the attention of other arms the powers and limitations of pigeons and to obtain their use in maneuvers.

Photographic Service

Probably the most important activity of the Signal Corps photographic service, considering potential value to the Army is the production of training films. This activity is progressing satisfactorily. One sound film has been completed, two more are almost ready and three others are in various stages of scenario preparation.

Reduce Paper Work

Another important saving in time, effort and expense has been accomplished pursuant to the duties of the Chief of Staff to bring about a radical reduction in paper work in the Army. The Chief of Finance with the hearty cooperation and approval of the Hon. Ross A. Collins, Chairman of the subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee, House of Representatives, has succeeded in eliminating 22 out of 29 separate statistical reports containing voluminous data which have been furnished annually to Congress. This will result not only at a very material saving in labor in the various bureaus of the War Department charged with the compiling of these reports, but will reduce appreciably the cost of printing and handling of these reports by the subcommittee of Congress.

Infantry Refresher Course

Ft. Benning, Ga.—An address by Maj. Gen. Campbell King, commandant of The Infantry School, featured the brief exercises which brought to a close the refresher course of The Infantry School at two o'clock Friday afternoon, Nov. 18. General King spoke of his pleasure in having had the high ranking officers as students for the four week special course and pointed out the professional advantages which accrued to every officer attending the Infantry School as a student.

Members of the graduating class are: Colonels: Albert W. Foreman, 13th Infantry; Walter Krueger, 6th Infantry; Joseph A. Marmon, 16th Infantry; Thomas S. Moorman, 22nd Infantry; James M. Petty, 34th Infantry; Douglas Potts, Infantry; Grosvenor L. Townsend, Infantry; Lieutenant Colonels: Francis C. Endicott, Infantry; Edwin T. Gunner, Infantry; Rowan P. Lemly, Infantry; Edward E. McCammon, 13th Infantry; Thomas F. McNeill, Infantry; James H. Van Horn, Signal Corps; Franklin L. Whitley, 24th Infantry; Joseph M. Seammell, Infantry Reserve, and Maj. John R. D. Matheson, Corps of Engineers.

Army Aids Relief

Cooperating with local agencies in their efforts to raise funds for relief work in Baltimore, Army cooks and mess personnel from the nearby post of Fort George G. Meade, fed nearly 5,000 volunteer workers at the Fifth Regiment Armory on Monday evening, Nov. 21, in the formal opening of a $2,000,000 relief campaign.

THE CALL OF THE WILD

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Paul Bransom, noted animal painter . . . inspired by the savage struggle between the ferocious wild dog and the vicious wolf . . . as described in Jack London's famous novel of combat against crude nature. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

Over 1,000,
The American
Tobacco Co.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.
